

FIEND VICTIM FOUND

Dead Woman Identified by New York Police.

WAS STRAGGLED TO DEATH

Murderer Less Marks of Fingers on Throat Young Girl Found in Archaic Tenement House. Head Jammed into Corner—Pair of Shoes Leave Only Clue.

New York, July 30.—The finding of a young woman in the archaic of a tenement at 204 1/2 Ninetieth street at 4 o'clock this morning brought to light a brutal murder.

A dozen detectives, who started out on the case before 1 o'clock, found the body cold, had been unable, up to midnight, to learn the identity of the woman or to get any clue of the murderer.

Policeman Head of the East Eighty-eighth street station, found the body, lying on a pair of woman's tan shoes lying on the steps leading into the area. The body was in full view as soon as he stepped inside the tenement. It had been hidden from passers by the front steps of the tenement, which form a roof over part of the area.

Head Jammed in Corner.

The woman was found face up on the stone floor. The head was jammed into a corner of the tenement doorway, and the soles of her feet were against the outside wall of the area. The woman's face had several bloodstains which looked like finger marks. Her neck was discolored, and on each side were the imprints of a man's fingers. The murderer had dug his nails to the flesh.

Dr. Caraculacu, on the Presbyterian Hospital, said the woman had been dead only a little more than an hour. An examination by the doctor showed that the lower part of her body had been frightfully mutilated. It was from these wounds that the blood had come.

There were two or three good-sized blood stains on the stone floor, and evidence that there had been a hard struggle.

The murderer used no weapon, attacking the woman with his hands alone.

The victim was about twenty-four years old. In the opinion of the police, she was probably an Italian or a Cuban. She was poorly dressed.

Policeman Head arrested Mrs. Wolf, who lives in the tenement of the tenement.

None Identify Her.

None of the tenants of the building could throw any light on the identity of the woman, her janitor, who lives on the ground floor, heard the policeman when he entered the area, but not a sound had come to his ears before that. The policeman searched sleepers in other tenements near by, and got the hand-ers from neighboring saloons, but in no way knew the woman. Her body lay in the area, guarded by the police for about two hours, and then it was taken to the morgue.

Coroner's physician Lehane, after he had performed an autopsy, declared that strangulation was the cause of the death. He advised the police to look for a big, strong man probably more than 6 feet tall. The marks on the woman's throat, according to the doctor, showed that the murderer had an immense hand. He had gripped the neck so tightly that some of the bones had almost been dislocated.

The blood on the face, undoubtedly came from the murderer's hand when he strangled her from crying out.

This is not an ordinary murder for hate or revenge; it is the work of a fiend, said Dr. Lehane.

Shoes Only Clue.

The only clue the police could find in the area was in the pair of russet shoes. They were marked "The Whirl of the Town."

There was a show of that name at the Casino a few years ago, and the police thought the woman might have bought the shoes from somebody in the show. They were certain that she had not been on the state.

The murderer had, apparently, taken pains to remove everything from the woman's pockets that might furnish a clue to her identity.

The coroner's autopsy showed that she had not had anything to eat for twenty-four hours.

The woman found on Monday afternoon, strangled in bed, at 475 West Twenty-second street, was known as Mary Graham, 147 East Twenty-seventh street.

The identification was made by the two daughters of Mrs. Catherine Boyd, who keeps the Twenty-seventh street house. The Graham woman came to Mrs. Boyd's house about five weeks ago. One day she told Mrs. Boyd that she was a married woman, with a son named Roy in Buffalo, and that she was supporting the boy by working in a restaurant.

She left Mrs. Boyd's house last week, but returned again last Friday, and said that she wanted to come back, as she did not like her lodgings.

She was then living in the Twenty-second street house, with the man who has since, it is believed, killed her. The Manhattan police have sent out a general alarm to look for a man by the name of Davis or Pavoni.

NEW SHIP PERFORMS WELL.

Kronprinzessin Cecilie Makes 23 1/2 Knots an Hour on Trial.

New York, July 30.—Cable advices were received from Bremen to-day by Oelrichs &amp; Co., agents of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, stating that the trial trip of their new twin-screw steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie was in every way satisfactory to the officials of the line.

The trip indicated a speed of 23 1/2 knots without even developing her full engine power of 12,000 horsepower, consisting of four quadruple engines. The Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which is a sister ship of the Kaiser Wilhelm II at the same line, is 750 feet in length, 72 feet beam, 44 feet in depth, and has a displacement of 26,000 tons. She is to enter the Bremen-New York service, sailing from Bremen on August 6.

PAUL H. HACKE DYING.

Pittsburg Millionaire Dying of Goods King Cannot Recover.

Pittsburg, July 30.—Paul H. Hacke, millionaire dry goods king, of Pittsburg, well known all over the country, is dying at his home here.

Dropsy and Bright's disease are the ailments which trouble him.

Mr. Hacke, who was head of the firm of Huges &amp; Hacke, was one of the leading art connoisseurs in Pittsburg and was the only man who had a private art gallery in his place of business. Years ago, Mr. Hacke created much interest by paying $20,000 for Duquesne, a practically unknown stallion. He was the first to introduce the breeding of Russian bloodhounds in America.

IMPlicate BOTH MAGILLS.

State's Witnesses Tend to Show Plot to Poison Victim.

Clinton, Ill., July 30.—The Magill dragged brought in results to-day, and the State's case looks better.

The important developments were testimony indicating that Fred Magill and Fay Graham, a night or two before the death of "Pet" Magill, went to Bloomington, remained all night, concocted the poison plot, purchased the drug there, and then returned to the Magill home in Clinton.

Testimony showing Fred Magill had talked to various neighbors about his wife dying, and that on the day she was found dead, in answer to a question, he flippantly remarked: "I guess she killed herself because she was nearsighted."

That Magill visited the local cemetery some time before "Pet" died and picked out two graves, which he is alleged to have said were for himself and "Pet," that he was heard to say on the day of the funeral, "I already feel the hangman's rope around my neck;" that the State declares it can indict Magill and perhaps Fay, his wife, without the doctor's report of the result of the autopsy, which has not been received or heard of here.

PETTUS IS BURIED

All Alabama Turns Out to Honor Dead Statesman.

SLEEPS BESIDE HIS WIFE

Grave of Friend and Colleague, John T. Morgan, but a Few Feet from Last Resting Place of Late Senator—Governor and Staff, and Many Negroes Attend Funeral.

Montgomery, Ala., July 30.—United States Senator E. W. Pettus sleeps beside his wife, who preceded him by a year, and his illustrious son, whose death some years ago was to that time the greatest sorrow of his life.

A few feet away lie the remains of his neighbor, friend, and colleague, John T. Morgan, buried only a month ago, and in a lot nearby is the tomb of William R. King, a Vice President of the United States.

No much honor has ever been shown an Alabama man in death as was to-day exhibited at the funeral of Senator Pettus. The governor and his staff, the brigade staff, a military escort of a regiment of infantry, a troop of cavalry, and a battalion of artillery, all the members of the legislature, the Supreme Court, and the State officers were present, conveyed from the capital by special train.

Prominent at the funeral was a long line of old negroes for whose race the dead statesman had always the best and kindest feeling.

Hundreds came from the country to the exercises, filling Selma to overflowing.

MISSISSIPPI MUCH EXCITED.

Williams and Vardaman Claim Senatorial Indorsement.

Jackson, Miss., July 30.—To-morrow will see the finish of the most intensely interesting Senatorial contest that has been held in the State of Mississippi since ante-bellum days.

Each side is claiming in advance victory to-night, the Williams men exuberantly shouting that nothing under 20,000 majority in to-morrow's primaries is looked for by them. On the other hand, while more conservative in their estimates, the Vardaman campaign managers say that their candidate will receive a safe majority of from 8,000 to 10,000 votes.

Even in the event of a moderately close vote, the final returns will not be obtainable before Friday morning, and if the contest is as close as Vardaman's followers seem to concede, Saturday, at the earliest, will tell the tale.

There is no question but that the nomination by to-morrow's primaries mean the election of the nominee. About 120,000 votes will be polled. Outsiders are making no prophecies.

VARDAMAN HURT IN WRECK.

Carelessness Caused Collision in Railroad Yard at Newton.

Jackson, Miss., July 30.—Gov. Vardaman was badly bruised about the shoulders in a wreck last evening in the railroad yards at Newton, Miss.

The passenger train on which the governor was traveling crashed into the rear of an engine standing on the main line. His injuries are not serious.

The express messenger and three passengers were also more or less severely injured.

The passenger, half an hour late, had the right of way, but through carelessness of the freight crew that engine was allowed to obstruct the track, and a curve around the high coal chute prevented the engineer of the passenger train from seeing the freight engine until too late to avoid the collision.

SEEK TO ELIMINATE SMOKE.

Railroads Still Experimenting, with Promise of Success.

At a meeting of the committee of representatives of the various railroads entering the District of Columbia, charged with the prevention of smoke, several interesting reports were submitted relative to the progress made toward eliminating smoke from the locomotives operated within the bounds of the District.

The meeting was attended by C. S. Gaskill, chairman; P. C. Thayer, of the Southern; F. J. Walsh, of the Chesapeake and Ohio; Frank Litchfield, of the Pennsylvania system; R. T. Bedford, of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac line; and E. A. Foss, of the Baltimore and Ohio system.

It was shown by the reports of the several members of the committee that through the use of coke and other devices, substantial progress had been made toward the elimination of offensive smoke. Little proof was shown that the smoke could be entirely eliminated, but the members of the committee expressed themselves as being confident that conditions would be arrived at which would meet the requirements of the District smoke law.

Jump from Fire; Two Drown.

Rochester, N. Y., July 30.—Two members of a pleasure party taking a ride in a launch on the Erie Canal were drowned to-night after jumping into the water to escape being burned to death, their boat having burst into flames as the result of ignition of gasoline.

GLENN ON NEW TACK

Takes Up Freight Rate Question with Railroads.

CONFERENCE SET FOR AUGUST 9

Shows that State is Discriminated Against in Favor of Virginia—Alleged Northern Boosts for the Presidency Announce Fighting Executive of Old North State.

Raleigh, N. C., July 30.—Representatives of the freight departments of railroads operating in North Carolina have been invited to meet Gov. Glenn and the corporation commission for consideration of the complaints of discrimination in rates against North Carolina. Responses have been received and arrangements have been made for a conference August 19.

In his letter inviting the railroads to confer with him, Gov. Glenn said: "The last general assembly of North Carolina set apart $4,000, with which I was to employ counsel for the State to investigate the freight discrimination against North Carolina and for other States, with the direction to use this amount, and more, if necessary, in gathering data and employing attorneys. I do not desire any litigation against the railroads in regard to State discrimination."

Only Ask Fair Treatment.

"All our shippers and merchants desire is that they shall be treated in the same way as Virginia shippers are treated, and should have one or more distributing points in North Carolina, to which and through which, we can get the same rates now given Lynchburg, Richmond, Norfolk, &amp;c."

"To do less puts us at a great disadvantage in competing with the merchants of other places, and is, to say the least, unjust to our people. Goods are shipped to Lynchburg, through Winston, Greensboro, and Durham for less than they can be shipped to these points. In fact, our shippers can have their goods shipped to Lynchburg, and then pay the local rate back to their places cheaper than they can have them shipped direct to them. This, upon its face, is unfair."

Sub-head "Boomed for President."

Will Permit No Delay.

Unless the Louisville and Nashville and Carolinas and Northwestern railroad comply with Governor Glenn's demand to put the 24-cent rate into effect on their lines in the State by August 8, when the Southern Railway and Atlantic Coast Line are to sell tickets at the new rate, according to the agreement made last Saturday, the governor will cause action to be taken by the courts to compel compliance with the law.

The governor said to-night that he will not tolerate any delay, as the railroads have had sufficient notice. A letter from the Louisville and Nashville received to-night says the company has in this State only thirteen miles of track, which have been operated at a loss. The governor will refer the letter to the corporation commission.

Boomed for President.

Gov. Glenn and some of his friends here are very much amused over the efforts of some newspapers to hurry him into the White House since Saturday evening, when the general counsel of the Southern Railway capitulated and signed the terms of peace dictated and demanded by the governor. Some Northern newspapers have been wiring inquiries to prominent politicians and officials asking if it is true that North Carolina will appoint Glenn as the State's delegate to the Democratic national convention, and saying that it had been learned that Bryan would agree to let Glenn secure the nomination of Glenn.

When Gov. Glenn was spoken to on the subject to-day he expressed the opinion that all such talk at this time was not only premature, but that it appeared that some people were judging him to be more foolish than he believed himself to be. He thought he was quite able to see that such spontaneous suggestion brought to life in a day are apt to have a very brief existence. He is not foolish enough to suppose the whole party, or either wing of it, would rush in to nominate a man as a candidate of the Democratic party for President simply because he had made a successful fight in a contest that attracted national attention.

No Desire for Presidency.

That the question of availability and general fitness for the exalted office would receive consideration at the hands of any convention charged with making the nomination for this office by either of the two great parties is the governor's belief, and he does not think he will lose his head on account of some of the extravagant telegrams and editorials tramped yesterday in New York and other Northern newspapers. Gov. Glenn's friends here largely think he would prefer, after his term expires at the State capital, something more serene and more in keeping with his actual aspirations than even the possibility of a Presidential nomination.

LITTLE PRITT COIN IN SIGHT.

Nelson May Be a 2 to 1 Favorite by To-night.

San Francisco, July 30.—From the slowness with which Britt money comes into the poolrooms, it looks as though Nelson might be a 10 to 5 or even 2-to-1 favorite by to-morrow night.

Britt's admirers say they want better odds than 10 to 7, but Corbett thinks they will accept these terms by late to-night or to-morrow. He also counts on the lack of short orders in "Frisco to induce many to back Britt.

Those who favor Britt's chances argue on him being able to evade the odds and by his shiftness and footwork score enough points to gain the decision at the end of the twenty rounds. On the other hand, the Dane has repeatedly demonstrated that no one can keep him from mixing things at close range, whereby his body blows are very effective.

There will be a very large crowd present, many sports coming from other cities.

No Deaf and Dumb in Manila.

Miss Della Delight Rice, sent by the United States government to Manila to establish a special school for the deaf and dumb in the islands, can find no one to teach. The census of several years ago showed that there were ninety-two deaf and dumb people in Manila, and thousands scattered about through the provinces. At the request of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, Miss Rice, a woman of experience, was sent to the Philippines. She can find no pupils, and wants to come home.

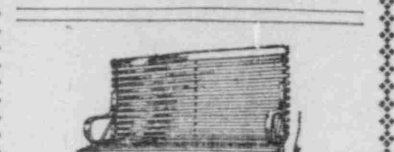

Test New Dry Dock To-day.

Philadelphia, July 30.—When the battle ship Kearsarge is placed on its blocks in the great new dry dock at League Island to-morrow, it will be the first test of the dock by the government. The dock has been seven years building, and cost $5,000,000.

The private rooms in our new Fireproof Storage Building are thoroughly approved by the Fire Underwriters.

CUBAN DUELLIST IS DYING.

Napoleon Galvez's Lung Pierced by a Rapier.

Havana, July 30.—Napoleon Galvez, a member of the staff of the newspaper Cuba, is dying as the result of a duel with Benito Celorio, son of a prominent lawyer.

Galvez has a wound in his right lung. Rapier was the weapons used. Galvez insulted the elder Celorio, who attempted to placate him and smooth over the difficulty. The son did not agree with this method, and challenged Galvez to fight a duel. An attempt was made to keep the affair quiet, Galvez telling the authorities that he was wounded by falling on an exposed nail.

Garcia Nohy, a member of the advisory committee, was one of Galvez's seconds.

ARREST GOODACRE BROTHERS

Police Strike Blow at Local Hand-book Operators.

Accused Said to Have Conducted Extensive Business on Ninth Street—How Bets Were Laid.

If the local police are able to substantiate their claims in court, the hardest blow yet administered to the handbook operators will be the arrest of the Goodacre brothers, who have been operating on Ninth street, near New York avenue, and who have been carrying on their business for some time.

Sergeant Lee appears on the blotter as the complainant against the two men, but it is said that a prominent marketman in this city is the cause of their arrest. Goodacre, who gave his address at 926 Ninth street northwest, was held at $1,000 collateral, while his brother, who lives on Chapin street, was required to give $300 for his appearance in court.

Arthur Thomas, 82 Rhode Island avenue, and Bayard Wren were held as witnesses.

It is said that the Goodacre brothers operated one of the largest handbooks in the city, and that it was the only one where a 100-to-1 par lay was paid. It is alleged that six runners were employed by the book, and that they recorded the bets on the thinnest cigarette paper, so that they could be easily destroyed. It was reported about town last night that the six runners often carried the papers in their mouths.

The method of successful operation is said to have been as clever as one as the police have seen for a long time. The place where most of the bets were made is said to have been in a cigar store on Ninth street, near New York avenue, and this store was in direct communication with a dairy lunch near by which is said to be owned by the Goodacre brothers.

According to the report, no bet could be made at the cigar store unless the bettor first presented himself at the dairy lunch room, where he was carefully scrutinized by the man in charge. If he looked all right, he was told that he might be able to get a bet down at the cigar store, and after his departure, the man in charge of the dairy lunch room would call on the cigar store, saying that it was O. K. If he was a suspicious-looking person, the cigar store was notified to refuse his bet. In this way, it is said, the business has been successfully carried on for some time.

Precinct Detective Vermilion has been assigned especially to this case, it is said, but not until yesterday had he collected sufficient evidence to make an arrest. The action will be brought to the police court this morning.

IS RELATED TO HUNTINGTONS.

Assistant Secretary of State Saddened by Versailles Tragedy.

The tragedy at Versailles, France, in which Henry Huntington, while making a visit to his father, Henry Alonzo Huntington, who was on his deathbed, shot his two sisters and two brothers, has brought gloom to at least one family in this city.

Third Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson is the cousin of the man who did the shooting and the only nephew of Maj. Henry Alonzo Huntington. Mr. Wilson yesterday received a telegram from his father, H. B. Wilson, who is now in Paris with the bereaved family, announcing the death of his uncle. The press dispatches have confused the name of the father, who died, Maj. Henry Alonzo Huntington, with that of his son, Douglas St. George Huntington, who was one of those shot by the other son, Henry.

Maj. Huntington was a member of the Legion of Honor of France, of the Loyal Legion, and of the Sons of the American Revolution. He has lived in France for the past thirty years.

ELECTION IN MANILA

Partial Returns Indicate Nationalist Victory.

PASSES OFF VERY QUIETLY

Dominador Gomez and Justo Lakhan Claim Complete Triumph Over Opponents—Conservative and Representative Merchants Fail to Vote—Only 2 Per Cent Registered.

Manila, July 30.—The independence factions, which united in the campaign under the name of the Nationalists, appear to have won the general election held throughout the islands to-day.

Incomplete returns from fifty out of the eighty districts show that thirty-one Nationalists were elected, ten Progressives, eight independence candidates, and one Catholic.

In Manila the Nationalists won by a large majority in both districts. Dominador Gomez claims the election in the First district in the city, while Justo Lakhan contests the election of both independence candidates.

It will probably be ten days or two weeks before the complete returns are received.

Manila All Quiet.

The city was perfectly quiet all day. There were only seven arrests. Virtually four-fifths of the registered vote had been cast before 2 o'clock. The majority of the election officers behaved fairly well. Such complaints as were made arose chiefly from the ignorance of inexperienced inspectors.

Unofficial, but pretty nearly accurate figures show that the Nationalists have been overwhelming victors, despite the split vote. In the first district, Gomez received 1,270 votes, while his rival, Lakhan, of the same party, received 1,241. Moreno, the Progressista, received only 48, being, therefore, beaten almost six times over.

In the second district Guerrero received 2,065 votes. Delpan, of the same party, received 1,108, whereas Valdes, the Progressista candidate, got but 916.

The total registration in Manila was 7,527. The total vote was 7,529. Many conservatives and representative merchants did not vote, being satisfied with the present administration and not realizing the necessity of participating in the management of the government.

Voters Barely Qualify.

A large proportion of the voters belong to the barely qualified class, who are easily attracted by glittering promises.

Incomplete official returns indicate that not 2 per cent of the civilized population registered. Probably the total vote will be approximately one-half of what at the municipal elections of 1905, when 150,000 registered and 118,000 voted, although the suffrage has been unchanged since then and the election law, translated into Spanish, Tagalog, and Ilocano, was thoroughly distributed.

HARTJE SCANDAL REOPENED

Sensational Charges Follow Arrest of Tom Madine.

Former Coachman Declares Millionaire's Lawyers Sought to Bribe Him to Leave Country.

Pittsburg, July 30.—Startling developments and sensational charges and counter-charges followed the double arrest to-day of Tom Madine, the coachman correspondent in the famous Hartje divorce case.

Madine is alleged to have had a dozen incriminating letters on his person purporting to have been written to him by Mrs. Hartje. Madine and attorneys for Mrs. Hartje believe that if letters or papers were found on Madine, he was the victim of a "plant," and hold conspiracy.

Madine to-night charges one of Hartje's counsel with persistently endeavoring to get him to leave the country upon promise of $10,000 if he would do so.

Madine, together with James O'Neill, a private detective, employed by Hartje, entered the Duquesne Hotel last night and there met John L. Raymond and Rose Irene Hagerty, also detectives. O'Neill and Raymond started an argument and a fight followed. Madine tried to interfere and a policeman was called to break up the fight. Madine was arrested and the policeman was left in a cell all night. This morning he was fined $10. He had $20, but for some reason his fine was refused.

Before he could be released, Augustus Hartje made information against him before Alderman Stephen J. Toole, charging him with larceny, and secured a search warrant. Madine was taken to the alderman's office by three constables, and searched.

Madine says he had nothing in his possession but his money and a song book. Attorneys for Hartje refused to talk, but persistent rumor to-night has it that twelve letters were unearthed. Madine declares he will have Hartje arrested at once for false arrest.

Madine made public the following statement to-night:

"For several months I have been working for the Perkins Detective Agency. I fell in with Hartje's detectives and let them think I was coming over to their side. I did this to trap them, and now I have them dead to rights. Soon after the trial, one of Hartje's lawyers sent for me. I would not see him. He sent messengers to me three times a week. On April 25 I went to his house and he offered me $10,000 to leave the country. I refused. He made it $20,000, but I said I would stick. Only yesterday he sent for me again and offered $10,000 if I would leave the State and stay out until this case was ended."

Mrs. Hartje is at Ligonier, Pa., with her children. Over the telephone she said to-night:

"They are entitled to all the letters from me they found on Madine. I still have faith in the courts, and the American people. Two of their witnesses are in the penitentiary now and I have been expecting this sort of thing. I have my children, and am willing to suffer for them."

cially indignant because the disruptive leaders of the small gang of blackmailing "Hunchakists," degrading thus the honored name of a great patriotic party.

Expelled by Hunchakists.

"For various acts of treachery and heinous crimes of blackmail, they were finally expelled from the Hunchakist party, and have ever since been known as 'Alfarists,' from the name of their arch-leader, Alfari. Yet they have always endeavored to call themselves 'Reorganized Hunchakist,' exploiting thus the great name of our old party—so loved and honored by all patriotic Armenians."

These "Alfarists" during their decade of existence have done nothing for Armenia but bring disgrace upon her fair name by their heinous crimes of blackmail and murder. The scandal of their misdeeds reached such a point that even their own followers protested and rebelled lately. These new seceders are now publishing a weekly paper called the "Azk," in which they have been exposing all the shameful misdeeds of their former leaders, Arzossian, Martirosian and company.

Therefore, the executive committee of America of the Armenian revolutionary Hunchakist party earnestly requests the impartial press, and the people of America, not to countenance this gang of blackmailers with the old mother party and hold her responsible for its shameful and loathsome misdeeds.

The Hunchakist party, during its twenty years of existence, has raised funds for her heroic struggle against Turkish tyranny only through absolutely voluntary contributions from patriotic Armenians."

SLAYER ONCE LIVED IN LOWELL

Bedros Khachadorian Known in Massachusetts Town.

Lowell, Mass., July 30.—Inquiry among Lowell Armenians to-day developed the
